IUP COUNCIL OF TRUSTEES' EXECUTIVE SESSION

The IUP Council of Trustees met in Executive Session on May 5 and today, May 8, to discuss personnel issues, collective bargaining/labor relations matters, acquisition of real estate, litigation, and other privileged and confidential matters.

READING AND CONSIDERATION OF THE MINUTES

The following motion was approved:

THAT THE MINUTES OF THE MEETING OF THE COUNCIL OF TRUSTEES HELD ON MARCH 13, 2014, BE APPROVED.

REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT

President Driscoll stated that he is pleased by the teamwork he sees at IUP. He feels there is a long way to go in some areas, but he can see many pieces begin to form several big pictures. He explained that, while those pictures might sometimes stand alone, they are all connected like a cyclorama and together will create one large masterpiece.

The president noted that since the last quarterly meeting, which fell just after the unfortunate incidents related to excessive behavior surrounding St. Patrick's Day, the university has been grateful for the time and attention given to the community by the Pennsylvania Emergency Management Agency staff. As a detached party, PEMA officials have met with a long list of stakeholders, from law enforcement and elected officials to landlords and business owners—and of course members of IUP's staff.

PEMA was to host a summit later in May expected to connect the dots for various facets of crisis moments like this one and to provide better assistance in preparing for them, do everything to eliminate them, and minimize their negative impact when they do happen. It symbolizes the beginning of the next round of IUP's shared work as a community.

The president stated that perhaps it would be easier for everyone to say "kids will be kids" and continue to clean up after each unfortunate event and then go back to their important work. This has been done many times before, on and off campus, here in Indiana and in college towns across the country. He said it is very clear that the nation has changed and is faced with a culture of excessive partying and a loss of civil behavior. Social media spreads the word, resulting in out-of-control parties and national exposure that overshadows all the good that IUP and this community do. More important than the damage to the university's reputation, people are hurt, lives are ruined, and we are left with fewer resources to do good. As a community, we must do everything we can to help students and others make sound and safe decisions and must hold accountable those who put others at risk. One step toward that is asking the Council of Trustees today to significantly increase fines issued by the Office of Student Conduct as part of the student judicial process.

Dr. Driscoll stated that curbing a repeat of March's incidents makes for a healthier Indiana community, as well as a healthier IUP community. After all, so many good stories are happening on this campus and in Indiana that deserve attention in traditional news media and in social media.

Dr. Driscoll announced that the Military Resource Center's first permanent director has been hired. Cory Shay, who served in a similar capacity at the Community College of Allegheny County, joined the center at the beginning of May.

The center has been in operation for several months, but the official opening was celebrated in early April. Serving as a way finder for veterans, active duty military and reservists, and their families, this center is emblematic of IUP's commitment to serving students from a variety of populations and circumstances—and this particular population deserves an extended hand. Stephen Abel, an alumnus who founded this center's counterpart at Rutgers University, attended the opening. Colonel Abel was in town because he was being inducted the following day into the IUP ROTC Hall of Fame.

The president noted that the University Family Drive ended recently, and the difference between this year's drive and last year's was astounding and reflected an incredible positive energy on campus. He said that Jim Miller will share in the University Advancement Committee report some of the details of the drive and will relate information about a special gift that will benefit the students who access the services of the Military Resource Center.

The president indicated that a top student experience must include opportunities for conducting research and, by extension, opportunities for presenting that research. The annual graduate and undergraduate scholars forums took place during Research Week, and they were a resounding success. Presentations on some very deep topics were given. Undergraduate presentations covered topics from an examination of the effect fracking [underground hydraulic fracturing associated with Marcellus shale drilling] has on the hearing of local residents to the health risks associated with wearing high-heeled shoes. Graduate presentations included a study of the impact standardized testing has on Russian students studying English as a foreign language, a spatial analysis of dirt and gravel roads in the Little Mahoning Watershed, and the biological and social reasons college students drink alcohol. Dr. Driscoll commented that a lot of fascinating research is taking place at IUP—much of it locally applicable and some with a global reach.

Dr. Driscoll reported that IUP students are also doing well in academic competition. Management major Taylor Billman took third place out of 144 team entries in the annual PASSHE Business Plan competition. Mr. Billman created a plan for a product called Dirt-Doc, a user-friendly search engine to enable contractors, developers, and property owners to advertise their need to buy or sell topsoil or other earth products.

IUP has another success story associated with the Office of the Chancellor. Gretchen Heine, a senior Spanish and history major enrolled in the Cook Honors College, was named a runner-up for the Ali-Zaidi Award, the annual award that recognizes outstanding academic achievement and participation in extra- and co-curricular activities.

The president reported that, at the annual Distinguished Alumni Awards gala, 10 alumni were recognized for their career distinction. They included an interesting cross-section of the career spectrum—from the retired executive director of the American Culinary Federation's Education Institute to the executive producer of Harpo Studios. Details about each awardee may be found on the Alumni Relations website. He remarked that the growing list of IUP's Distinguished Alumni represents what this university is all about—a place that provides students with the tools they need to transform their lives to become leaders in their chosen fields.

President Driscoll announced that, at an event to be held that evening, IUP's next Distinguished University Professor, Krys Kaniasty, will be saluted. Dr. Kaniasty is a member of the Psychology faculty who has published extensively on the effects of trauma and disaster. In addition, faculty Senate award recipients and all of the faculty members who have published will be honored.

The president wished to congratulate, in particular, the Senate awardees—Sue Rieg, recognized for service to the university; Kevin Eisensmith, for creative arts; A. J. Haija, for teaching; and Shundong Bi, for research.

Dr. Driscoll reported that IUP will bid farewell to more than 1,900 students at two commencement ceremonies. An honorary doctor of public service degree will be awarded to Terry Dunlap, a member of the Class of 1981. He has honorably served IUP as a member of the Foundation for IUP Board of Directors and the Eberly College Advisory Council. A Blairsville native and now a Pittsburgh resident, he has served as president of Allegheny Ludlum and, after the company's transformation to Allegheny Technologies Incorporated, as executive vice president of ATI Flat Rolled Products Group.

Dr. Driscoll expressed his appreciation to the Council of Trustees for its guidance and support this year. He also noted that he is grateful to have a faculty and staff so dedicated to this university. They are working hard and ensuring students receive the best possible education, filled with academic service, research activities, and extracurricular opportunities on a safe and beautiful campus.

In closing, Dr. Driscoll reported that the budget is now balanced, and IUP is working ahead on caring for budget issues for the next several fiscal years. Enrollment is on target for next year's goal of 14,368.

The following motion was approved:

THAT THE REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT BE ACCEPTED.

Comments by Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs

Provost Timothy Moerland introduced IUP's new Distinguished University Professor, Krys Kaniasty, of the Psychology Department. Dr. Kaniasty's scholarship focuses on post-disaster social support. He plans to examine the simple question, "When is social support actually helpful?" during his tenure as Distinguished University Professor, with the ultimate goal of publishing a book on the topic. He is a shining example of exemplary faculty at IUP.

Provost Moerland updated the trustees on ongoing efforts to address the challenge of assisting students in developing math skills, if they arrive at IUP with needs in this area. There is a national discussion and debate on this issue. The university is in the early stages of planning and implementation of the recommendation of the work group examining this issue.

Robert E. Cook Honors College

Caleb Finegan updated the trustees on the past, present, and future activities within the Robert E. Cook Honors College. Dr. Finegan was appointed in January of this year after Janet Goebel stepped down as director after many successful years leading the Honors College. IUP welcomed its first incoming class within the Honors College in 1996. Since that time, almost 1,000 individuals have graduated in a variety of disciplines, including biology, English, and psychology. From that relatively small number, the Honors College has had nine Fulbright Scholar awards, five Goldwater awards, three National Science Foundation awards, and one national teaching award. Dr. Finegan shared the current curriculum in which Honors College students participate and outlined ideas for possible changes in the future. Honors College students have a community service component to their curriculum, and the 72 students graduating on Saturday completed 13,357 hours in their four years, primarily in service locally. Two graduating seniors, Ryan Egan and Gretchen Heine, outlined their postgraduation plans. Mr. Egan has been selected to participate in the Teach for America program and will teach math and language arts to inner-city middle-school students in Nashville, Tennessee. Ms. Heine will teach Spanish and English as part of a program in Nicaragua. Both students plan to attend graduate school to further their studies. Dr. Finegan said the goal of the Honors College is to recruit and retain exemplary students and foster and model a community of scholars.

REPORT OF THE UNIVERSITY ADVANCEMENT COMMITTEE

James C. Miller, chair of the University Advancement Committee, presented the following report:

Bill Speidel, vice president for University Advancement, gave an overview of events and accomplishments in the division since the last Council of Trustees meeting.

During the Distinguished Alumni Gala on April 12, 10 alumni were honored for success in their professions and service to IUP. The Alumni Association Board of Directors also met and unveiled a new recognition wall in Sutton Hall honoring Distinguished Alumni.

Mr. Speidel highlighted the fund-raising report. Gifts received have surpassed $4.69 million. Annual Giving is showing significant progress, recently passing the $1.31-million mark, a 21.6 percent increase.

The University Family Drive concluded April 4 with great success. A total of 727 employees made a gift, and 179 were first-time donors. Fifty-one volunteers made this success possible. A highlight of the drive was the 46 percent participation rate, a dramatic improvement over the rate of 15 percent two years ago.

Also on April 4, at the dedication of the Military Resource Center, Stephen Abel, IUP Class of 1973, announced a $25,000 pledge to create an emergency fund to assist veterans as they enroll at IUP.

Mr. Speidel presented some of the successes of the Annual Giving program, with special emphasis on the improved return on investment made possible by having IUP staff members manage the phonathon program.

A draft Case for Support was reviewed and is being tested through a feasibility study that began in April. This study will be a critical document as the division finalizes plans for IUP's Comprehensive Campaign.

REPORT OF THE ENROLLMENT MANAGEMENT AND COMMUNICATIONS COMMITTEE

Mark Holman presented the following report in the absence of Mary Esther Van Shura, chair of the Enrollment Management and Communications Committee:

James Begany, vice president for Enrollment Management and Communications, shared highlights summarizing the division's activities, programs, and accomplishments. In addition, he provided an update on changes within the division and overall enrollment for fall 2014.

Michael Husenits, director of Admissions, presented information on the progress toward enrollment for fall 2014 and ongoing initiatives for meeting enrollment goals.

Stacy Hopkins, director of Financial Aid, shared an overview of the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) data elements that are used to determine expected family contribution (EFC) and how that information is used to determine financial need. Various student scenarios were reviewed to illustrate the family income behind the EFC and the resulting financial aid offer extended to the student. An estimate of cost to attend IUP was given for each student scenario, as well.

Tammy Manko, director of the Career and Professional Development Center, shared highlights from the Graduate First Destination Survey Report of the Class of 2013. Data is collected annually regarding the postgraduation activities and status of members of each graduating class. To obtain the highest knowledge rate, IUP staff members administered an online survey and contracted with a data collection company. A knowledge rate is defined by the National Association of Colleges and Employers as the percent of graduates for whom the institution has reasonable and verifiable information regarding postgraduation status. The report included survey response results in addition to the knowledge rate. These data collection methods resulted in a survey response rate of 12.8 percent and a knowledge rate of 34.8 percent. Despite continued challenging economic times, IUP graduates consistently secured employment and/or pursued further education. Data analysis revealed that 84 percent of Class of 2013 graduates responding to the survey are employed, continuing their education, or both. The knowledge rate indicated that 93.6 percent of Class of 2013 graduates identified are employed, continuing their education, or both.
