Summary of the Proposed Revisions

The Criminology Department instituted a curriculum change beginning Fall 2003. These current changes are designed to update and solidify minor revisions to that curriculum modification. The Department also found that many Criminology majors and minors are taking core courses when they are not prepared, due to non-existent prerequisites. These changes will correct this problem to ensure students are completing the correct sequences of courses (i.e. 100-level courses before 200-level, and 200-level before 300-level, etc.). It will also allow non-Criminology majors the option to take Criminology courses open to non-majors. Also, the Criminology Department would like to change the course title and terminology of law enforcement to policing in CRIM 205 to broaden the scope of the class and be more reflective of the appropriate use and study of this field

Section 3 Rationale for the Revisions

CRIM 205

The old prerequisites are being changed from 'and' to 'or' to reflect the appropriate material needed before taking this course, as well as allowing non-Criminology majors to take this course.

The course title and terminology are changed from 'law enforcement' to 'policing'. Law enforcement is a function of government, only. However, policing includes both public and private services, such as private policing/security. Since criminology, as a discipline, addresses crime and its prevention through activities and initiatives by individuals, groups, organizations, and government, a course related to "policing" is more appropriate than government specific law enforcement. Also, the relationships between public and private policing are important and complex, for example, when off-duty public police are employed as security and the two functions become integrated, formally and informally.

CRIM 210

There were no prerequisites listed for CRIM 210, so adding the new prerequisites will ensure students have the necessary knowledge before taking this course. Departmental approval was added since CRIM 210 is listed as an appropriate course for Pre-Law students who are not Criminology Pre-Law majors.

CRIM 215

The old prerequisites are being changed from 'and' to 'or' to reflect the appropriate material needed before taking this course, as well as allowing non-Criminology majors to take this course. The addition of Departmental Approval will ensure that Pre-Law students who are not Criminology Pre-Law majors will be able to take this course.

CRIM 225

The old prerequisites are being changed from 'and' to 'or' to reflect the appropriate material needed before taking this course, as well as allowing non-Criminology majors to take this course. The addition of Departmental Approval will ensure that a student in the Juvenile Delinquency track, within the Sociology Department, will be able to take this course.

CRIM 235

The old prerequisites are being changed from 'and' to 'or' to reflect the appropriate material needed before taking this course, as well as allowing non-Criminology majors to take this course. The addition of Departmental Approval will ensure that a student in the Juvenile Delinquency track, within the Sociology Department, will be able to take this course.

CRIM 255

There were no prerequisites listed for CRIM 255, so adding the new prerequisites will ensure students have the necessary knowledge before taking this course. Departmental approval was added since CRIM 255 is listed as an appropriate course for Pre-Law students, who are non-Criminology Pre-Law majors.

CRIM 281

The addition of CRIM 101 or 102 will ensure the students have the necessary knowledge base of the criminal justice system. Departmental Approval is added in case the prerequisites are deemed unnecessary for the special topic course offered and available to non-Criminology majors.

CRIM 300

The old prerequisite is included and the addition of CRIM 101 will ensure the appropriate knowledge base for a 300-level course. 'Instructor permission' is no longer necessary since this course is not required under the Fall 2003 curriculum change, but is an elective option.

CRIM 306

The old prerequisite is included, with the addition of CRIM 102 and Junior Standing. This course is required for Criminology majors and the revision of the prerequisite will ensure students do not take this class before they have the necessary knowledge to succeed in this course.

CRIM 344

The old prerequisite is being changed from 'and' to 'or' to reflect the appropriate material needed before taking this course, as well as allowing non-Criminology majors to take this course.

CRIM 354

The old prerequisites are being changed from 'and' to 'or' to reflect the appropriate material needed before taking this course, as well as allowing non-Criminology majors to take this course.

CRIM 374

The old prerequisites are being changed from 'and' to 'or' to reflect the appropriate material needed before taking this course, as well as allowing non-Criminology majors to take this course.

CRIM 384

The old prerequisites are being changed from 'and' to 'or' to reflect the appropriate material needed before taking this course, as well as allowing non-Criminology majors to take this course.

CRIM 391

There were no prerequisites listed for this course. Adding the new prerequisites will ensure students have the necessary knowledge before taking this course.

CRIM 394

The old prerequisites are being changed from 'and' to 'or' to reflect the appropriate material needed before taking this course, as well as allowing non-Criminology majors to take this course, if opened to all majors. The addition of Departmental Approval allows students in the Juvenile Delinquency track, within the Sociology Department, to have the option to take this course, if not able to meet the prerequisites.

CRIM 400

There were no prerequisites listed for CRIM 400. This is a required course for Criminology Majors, so adding the new prerequisites (CRIM 101 and CRIM 102 and Junior Standing) will ensure students have the necessary knowledge before taking this course, especially a required 400-level class.

CRIM 401

There were no prerequisites listed for CRIM 401. This is a required course for Criminology Majors, so adding the new prerequisites (CRIM 101 and CRIM 102 and Junior Standing) will ensure students have the necessary knowledge before taking this course, especially a required 400-level class.

CRIM 403

The old prerequisites are included. The course is required for all Criminology Majors. Adding 'Junior Standing' ensures the students have the necessary knowledge base before taking this course, especially a required 400-level class.

CRIM 450

There are no prerequisites for this course. The inclusion of CRIM 101 or 102 will ensure students have the necessary criminological information to succeed in this 400-level course.

CRIM 470

There are no prerequisites for this course. The inclusion of CRIM 101 or 102 will ensure students have the necessary criminological information to succeed in this 400-level course.

CRIM 480

There are no prerequisites for this course. The inclusion of CRIM 101 or 102 will ensure students have the necessary criminological information to succeed in this 400-level course.

CRIM 481

The old prerequisite is included. Adding CRIM 101 or 102 ensures they have the basic knowledge of criminology and the criminal justice system before taking this course. Departmental Approval is added in case the prerequisites are deemed unnecessary for the special topic course offered and available to non-Criminology majors.

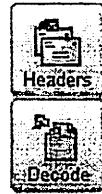

CRIM 482

The old prerequisite is included. Adding CRIM 101 and 102 ensures they have the basic knowledge of criminology and the criminal justice system before taking this course.

CRIM 493

There were no previous prerequisites, though students had to meet the specific criteria listed to be approved for an internship. Adding the criteria to the catalog description will allow students to be aware of the requirements.

- 3. Changing a course title*
- 4. Adding a course to the Controlled Elective B options*

The proposal is attached. Please let me know if you have questions.

Thanks!
